The Church of St. Mildred, Bread street, the living of which is vacant through the death of Canon Glendinning Nash, is famous chiefly as the scene of two romantic marriages. It was there in October, 1791, that Henry Cecil, afterward tenth Earl and first Henry Cecil, afterward tenth Earl and first as bride, and gave Tennyson the Many Series of Exeter, led to the altar a vill will be selected for his "Lord of Burleigh." It was at St. Mildred's also on December 30, 1816, that Shelley was married to Mary Godwin.
